

Restless Russia
Names of Yesteryear
Dogs Hate Wolves
Ireland? Yes. U. S. A.? No
By Arthur Brisbane
RUSSIA'S government, restless and energetic as the sea, invents a new court for factories called, "The Friendship Court."
Each factory will have its court, with workers for judge and jury. No fines or imprisonment, but other "discipline" will correct workers guilty of drunkenness, "loafing" or carelessness, dangerous to themselves and others.
Under the czar, all Russians from moujiks to grand dukes, every rank, every foot of land in Russia belonged to the czar. Stalin wants it understood that everything now belongs to the Soviet, and a workman who injures himself is injuring government property.
News that Howard Gould's former wife, who was Katherine Clemmons, is dead, will interest the old with long memories. When Victoria was on the throne, John L. Sullivan champion of the world, Jay Gould refused interview, and William O'Brien in jail at Tullamore, Katherine Clemmons, a beautiful young girl with long yellow hair, brought letters to London from Charles A. Dana.
"Buffalo Bill" Cody, with long hair on his shoulders, admired her greatly, as well as the old Howard Gould married her and she built an imitation of Killarney Castle, on Long Island, overlooking the water.
Now she is gone to find out what happened to Victoria, Sullivan, Jay Gould, Buffalo Bill and others gone before.
We are such things as dreams are made of, but it is an interesting dream while it lasts. And perhaps waking up is even more interesting.
Dogs hate foxes and wolves because they are closely related, and with human beings it is the same. Chinese bandits have released 14 missionaries, nuns, priests, without ransom. They killed two priests that were Chinese.
India's 300,000,000 inhabitants cannot continue to drive out the British because Hindustani have Mohammedans hate the British, but hate each other more than they hate the British. It is a pity that Mohammedans are so much hated as Mohammeds because they eat cows, and Mohammedans hate cows, and because they eat pigs.
They murder each other while the British eat both cows and pigs, and rule them all.
The Shannon river power plant works admirably in Ireland. The first stage of development provides a peak load of 48,000 kilowatts, and an annual output of 152,000,000 units. Power experts thought it would take three years to develop completion for so much power. It is all used now, 10 months after the beginning of operations.
American high finance will be amazed to learn that the Irish government developed and owns the power of the Shannon river, as running the power plant successfully, and, needless to say, selling power for much more than it costs in the United States.
Who is it impossible for the United States government to manage any of its own property, for instance, the Shannon? Is it because our government is too inefficient and dishonest, or because our corporation minds control the government?
Yesterday afternoon, at Bologna, in Portuguese Guinea, 14 Italian seamen lay on the water close together.
Soon 12 of the 14 will rise and fly together over the open ocean to Natal, Brazil.
This first flight of a great air squadron marks another important step in aviation. From Natal, the Italians will fly to Rio de Janeiro, and on to Buenos Aires.
Who doubts that the intelligence of man will enable him to do, safely and regularly, what the wild geese have done for more than 1,000,000 years.

WOMAN RISKED LIFE TO SAVE

22 CHILDREN

Seven persons, five of them women, were overcome by smoke, a dozen others carried to safety by firemen and more than 30 other occupants fled through smoke-filled corridors when a general alarm fire swept a five-story lodging house at 146 Union st. Lynn, today.
Damage was estimated at $30,000. Thirty-three firemen had a narrow escape from the burning building when they were blown a distance from 10 to 25 feet by an explosion in the basement. The flames on top of the building, the blaze, according to Chief Crass, was the most spectacular in Lynn in recent years and for a time threatened the entire business district.
The fire had its source in Mrs. A. Tooley, landlady, to whom many of those rescued owed their lives. She was firemen through the blaze in a smoke-filled corridor, opening doors and awakening sleeping tenants who fled.

Passengers said he had a fractured skull, fractured ribs and internal injuries. He was pinned between the driver's seat and the steering wheel by the crash. He was removed to his home in an ambulance.

CHINESE SEEK PRINCE HURT IN STEIN'S OUSTER

FALL OF HORSE

Peiping, China, Dec. 27 (AP)—Immediate expulsion from China of Sir Auel Stein, noted British archaeologist, who is now exploring the Sibihsien Province of Chinese Turkestan, was demanded today in a petition to the government by the Peiping Association for the Preservation of Ancient Relics.
The demand was based on the statements attributed to Sir Auel in an address before the Harvard Yenching Institute at Cambridge, Mass., last year.
The petitioners said Stein had declared at that time that "Sinking is not civilised, there is no central government in China and the day of the Chinese race are numbered."
London, Dec. 27 (AP)—Riding a spirited thoroughbred lent to him by an American millionaire, Prince George, youngest son of King George and Queen Mary, sustained a dislocated shoulder today when his mount slipped and fell at Melton Woodbury.

JOFFRE WOUNDED, LEG CUT OFF

Paris, Dec. 27 (AP)—With one leg amputated because of gangrene developing in the advanced stages of arthritis, Marshal Joffre, hero of the Marne, lay today between life and death.
There was an air of mystery about the old hero's illness, but physicians declining to say where the patient was. They disclosed, however, the amputation was performed last Saturday night that Marshal Joffre had persistently refused to permit announcement of his husband's condition.

N. E. Lashed by Storm, No Letup in Sight

A furious northeast storm, due to continue for many hours, lashed all New England today, causing high property damage, keeping out-bound ships at their piers and resulting in numerous auto crashes. At Leicester, where the heaviest rain fell, three youths were seriously injured.
Freezing weather and a prolonged storm are in store here and elsewhere as the temperature fell, and it was the steepest that threatened to tie up all forms of transportation.
Heavy boats at anchor were piled on shore all along the coast. A big amphibious plane was wrecked and sank off the Boston airport.

WILKINS SEES ICE BEATEN BY HUGE SUBS

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, believes giant submarines, carrying the grain of the Canadian prairie provinces, will keep the Arctic route open for the year round.

"I think large submarine grain carriers, of say 15,000 tons displacement, are the only thing if that route is to be used properly," he said today.

The submarines would go across Hudson Bay and across the Atlantic to the Arctic, where Sir Hubert, who has flown over Arctic ice and walked on it, expects to prove next summer that it is faster to go under it.

In his 175-foot submarine, Nautilus, named after the craft in Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," he will attempt to travel 200 miles under the ice from Spitzbergen to the Bering Sea. The Nautilus is being built at Philadelphia and has been remodelled from an old naval type into what will be the summer home of 18 men, six scientists and a crew of twelve.

SWANSON READY TO SPEED UP COURT ISSUE

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—Senator Swanson today said he would not oppose a special session of Congress if it is forced this spring, when he will demand prompt consideration of the world court in that session.

The Senate foreign relations committee has voted to defer consideration of the court issue until the next regular session in December.

Swanson said he would oppose the legislation, but believed such a course was indicated on the basis of there would be no extra session of Congress in the spring.

"I do not care for an extra session of Congress in the spring, at least temporarily," he said.

"I don't believe the country wants one," said Swanson today.

Swanson also said he would oppose a special session of Congress to consider the world court issue.

BROOKBART NOT EMPELLED BY DEMOCRATS

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—Democratic leaders here did not adopt a program, said Senator Brookhart, a Republican, today, which would induce him to vote with them in organizing the next Senate.

Brookhart had offered to vote with the Democrats if they would cooperate to put an end to what he called "McLaurinism."

The offer made after the elections attracted considerable interest because of the close lineup in the next Senate.

Brookhart said today the Democratic party apparently has the same sort of leadership as the Republican party. He added he did not intend to "jump out of the frying pan into the fire."

"So far they have announced no program," he said.

"The Democratic party seems to be wanting to avoid responsibility and the country will not trust any party that wants to do that," he said.

Brookhart said the much-talked-of cooperation between the Republican and Democratic parties, "is simply bi-partisan Wall Street rule."

"It is the same we have had all along," he said.

"Newly all laws which are suppressing the people today were passed by this bi-partisan cooperation."

"Party regularity is the same propaganda to make the parties take policy above country and I think it treason to the country. Party policy should be subordinate to national policy."

SENATOR REED SMOOT

"U. S. Must Not Cancel War Debts,"

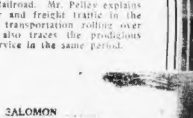

—says Senator Reed Smoot, who declares he will resist any move for debt cancellation on the ground that it would impose upon United States taxpayers the burden of liquidating the war. He states his position very forcibly in his feature article tomorrow.

EDOUARD HERRIOT

"Let Nations Diagram the Skies,"

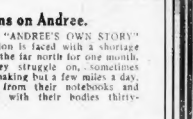

—declares Edward Herriot, former Prime Minister of France. "It is amazing," Mr. Herriot states in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser, "that so many discussions at the last few years with more transportation equipment over so little attention was paid to aerial navigation. It has been proven that behind the mask of civil aviation lurks the specter of a military threat."

JOHN L. PELLEY

How Future Railroads Will Operate.

This feature article on one of our great industries is written by John L. Pelley, President of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. Mr. Pelley explains the decrease in passenger and freight traffic in the last few years with more transportation equipment over the highways. Mr. Pelley also traces the prodigious improvement in railway service in the same period.

FOUR HELD FOR EVERETT THEFT

Springfield, Dec. 27—Four youths giving addresses in Everett and Chelsea, were arrested here today by Motorcycle Officer Paul Henry, and held awaiting arrival of Everett police for questioning regarding the holdup of a newswoman in that city Sunday.

Search of the quartet by police here revealed a large amount of money in bills on the person of one of the youths, and a ten-pound sugar bag under the rear seat of a car in which the change said to amount almost to $200.

The youths gave their names as Thomas McDonough, 20, of Madison Ave., Everett; Thomas Brennan, 18, of Cottage St., Everett; Joseph Panarese, 18, of Chelsea St., Everett; and Patrick Barry, 16, of 200 Everett St., Chelsea. They said they were en route to New York, but had had motor trouble in Worcester.

Officer Henry said his attention was attracted to the machine because of the speed at which it was traveling.

Arguments Finished in Fay Will Contest

Ally Joseph E. Brennan, attorney for the executor, James E. G'Connell, of the Bradstreet Mercantile agency for which Fay was employed, today closed his arguments in the case of the late William M. Fay, whom the case is being tried, reserved his decision.

Fay's will in which $55,000 was left to Miss Mary E. Brennan, of 151 S. St., South Boston, an employee of the Bradstreet Mercantile agency for which Fay was employed, today closed his arguments in the case of the late William M. Fay, whom the case is being tried, reserved his decision.

North Weymouth, Dec. 27—Several hundred show pigeons, valued at thousands of dollars, died today in a fire that destroyed a large barn on the Franklin, Blawie estate. Damage to the barn was estimated at $1000. Blawie, a retired building wrecker, died several months ago.

PLOT TO WRECK TRAIN BARED

An attempt was made to wreck a commuter train on the Needham Junction route, it was learned today from N. Y. N. H. & H. Railroad police. The plot was bared by the holdup of a newswoman in that city Sunday.

Search of the quartet by police here revealed a large amount of money in bills on the person of one of the youths, and a ten-pound sugar bag under the rear seat of a car in which the change said to amount almost to $200.

The youths gave their names as Thomas McDonough, 20, of Madison Ave., Everett; Thomas Brennan, 18, of Cottage St., Everett; Joseph Panarese, 18, of Chelsea St., Everett; and Patrick Barry, 16, of 200 Everett St., Chelsea. They said they were en route to New York, but had had motor trouble in Worcester.

Officer Henry said his attention was attracted to the machine because of the speed at which it was traveling.

Monte Carlo Astris as Prince Suspends Council in Coup

Monte Carlo, Dec. 27 (AP)—All Monte Carlo was astir today over the greatest coup of its history, at least temporarily.

One widely current rumor today was that Prince Louis, exasperated by the continued disorders in the country, and dissatisfied over his regime, will take a six months vacation, either leaving the principality or asking France to come to his aid.

Prince Louis is known to be convinced the only remedy for Monaco is to be a bigger tourist season with more wealthy American and British guests.

But a far more serious economic crisis and the intensified competition of Nice, Cannes, Juan Les Pins and other spots—eliminate reports whose attractions eclipse those of Monte Carlo, the Casino season looks none too favorably.

Prince Pierre, divorced husband of the hereditary Princess Charlotte and father of the heir apparent, little Prince Ranier, is watching the situation from Cannes ready to take a hand if he feels it advisable.

PROSPERITY IN 1937 FORECAST

New York, Dec. 27 (AP)—A moderate upswing in business during the early months of 1937 is forecast from a symposium of experts by the National Industrial Conference Board.

"Since it seems obvious that recovery will probably be very gradual and may be upon us before we are aware of it," the statement says, "it would be well for business to adjust itself for a long pull on the road to recovery."

Defining the term "normal" as an average between the bottom of the depression and the peak of the recent prosperity, the statement adds it is this kind of normal that may be hopefully expected by the end of 1937.

Long Lost Statue Found in Parthenon

Athen, Dec. 27 (AP)—One of the lost statues of the Parthenon, buried for years in a pile of "junk" marble has been discovered by Prof. Eva Carpenter, director of the American School of Classical Studies here. THE LAST SALE

By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 31

DICK WALTERS was greatly disturbed.

It had never occurred to him that the ring would be found. He realized now that he should have kept it.

But why, Kingsley pulled the old old trick of giving the jurors a glimpse of the ring. The jeweler's card testified that the ring came from his store, was sold as an engagement ring and that as such was not of one kind or another.

Mr. Rogers was perturbed, as he had a right to be. Did he get a poor case but Dick saw how he felt about this and became pensive. Mr. Rogers scribbled on a piece of paper.

"I've bought the ring as a promised gift because she won a bet with you—not an engagement ring at all."

Mr. Rogers tucked the paper in his pocket and Dick nodded.

The Bet

Kingsley played a master stroke—he pretended to dissent in question Dick further, though this testimony was sufficient.

Probably Rogers should have felt much about later and questions him about the ring.

"Did you buy the ring as an engagement ring?" Rogers asked when Dick admitted buying it.

"No, sir, merely as a present to the girl."

"Any particular reason for the present?" "My birthday or anything?"

"I bet her a ring and lost the bet."

"That was all, but Kingsley went on."

"What was the bet?"

"That she couldn't hit one of the dolls with a baseball at Carroll's new down and out."

Rogers and Dick felt, momentarily relieved.

"You bet her a diamond ring?"

"Nothing much," he said, as if uninterested.

Reno Judge Favors Divorce; Says Lasting Love Rules Marriages

HOWARD, GAVETY

Fun, songs and clever dancing, together with a "living curtain," and light features, and a number of "lights of 'Finger Puller'."

The question under discussion is whether divorce laws should be more liberal or more stringent. The interview with Judge Bartlett follows.

I have spent 11 years listening to the stories of unhappy men and women. The one conclusion I have been able to form definitely is that when love ends, marriage ends.

The law, at its best, cannot do much in that situation. All it can offer is an opportunity to make a new start. It cannot assure happiness, even then.

Of course, I am frequently criticized. That is to be expected. Long ago, however, I made up my mind not to follow precedents, but to make them.

All I hope is that other judges will follow in an effort to relieve people from their unhappy unions.

Objects of Force

No court can keep two persons together if they do not want to be together. And I do not believe any court should try to. Discard, which makes either party to a marriage contract unhappy, should be sufficient to end that contract.

When I encounter, as I do, one party to a marriage contract who insists on trying to force the other party to continue in the bond of marriage, I try to point out to them that a power higher than the court has already dissolved that marriage.

They may call it God, call it fate, call it circumstance—it does not matter by what name it is known. All that I can possibly hope to do for them both is give each an opportunity to find happiness under the law.

Marriages on Trial

I have no patience with these decrees of so-called separate maintenance. A man and a woman living under such a decree are neither free, nor are they united. Misery and immorality are the result.

Marriages on Trial

An interview with Judge George A. Bartlett, of Reno, Nev., the eleventh of a series in an unusual discussion of divorce laws, is published today. It presents his views as formulated from his experience in eleven years on the District Court bench of Nevada, as expressed to a Boston Evening American reporter.

The question under discussion is whether divorce laws should be more liberal or more stringent. The interview with Judge Bartlett follows.

POSTMEN SEND $5000 XMAS BASKET FUND

Late contributions to the Christmas Basket Fund, received yesterday, amounted to $750 and a check for $20, the donation of Boston Branch No. 34, National Association of Letter Carriers.

These contributions, for which the Boston Evening American wishes to extend the same gratitude that was accorded to the thousands of earlier givers, will be put to charitable use.

The total amount of donations was $12,000.

"The letter carriers of Greater Boston are always pleased to help in worthy causes, such as your Christmas Basket Fund. We have been contributing to the fund for many years and our contribution would have been greater. With kindest regards for success, I remain, 'JAMES F. DANFORTH, President.'"

The final status of the fund follows:

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American: I would like to see that old Boston Society Law and Order League revived in this city. I would like to see it replace the Anti-Saloon League and some other dry organizations. This Law and Order League of many years ago did good work in Boston. It was well planned. Citizens of repute backed it. I knew how to handle ticklish matters without making a mess of investigations. The secretary of that society, Miss O'Hara, was about as well qualified as any well endowed individual could be for such a responsible position. The writer of this letter is a...

Victory in the Country

Editor Boston American: During a discussion at one of the Sunday evening forums in this city, it was asserted that immigration is a problem to be tried in the city, considering the ratio of the population. Vice versa, it was pointed out, in the country life is more pronounced in the country life than in the city. There is more to be broken forth at any time and be discovered.

Who Was Who and
What Was What in Year Nearing End

BRIEF REVIEW OF HAPPENINGS OF 1930

Another year is turning the corner. Soon 1930 will be a thing of the past. In sport it will be a year to be remembered for many things. The outstanding figure was Robert Tyre Jones, who with his winning of the two major American and two major British golf titles, accomplished a feat unprecedented and which may never be equaled. Sharing the honors with Jones was the thoroughbred Gallant Fox, who equaled the deeds of Man o' War as a three-year-old and whose gross earnings of $341,365, sets a new turf record for all countries and for all time.

Uche Sam broken even in international competition. Harold S. Vanderbilt's Enterprise led Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V home in the International Cup Race and Tommy Hitchcock and his American boat the British invader in polo. But the United States failed to lift the Davis Cup in tennis, and in boxing the world's heavyweight championship left America for the first time in sport's history. Max Schmeling of Germany defeating our own Jack Sharkey for the crown. It was the only time in sporting annals that a heavyweight championship was won on a foul.

The dying year was the world's lightest championship change twice. Sammy Mandell lost the crown by a knockout to Al Singer, and Singer in turn was knocked to victory by Tommy Loughran from right heavyweight competition left that throne vacant and Maxie Baumbach of New York won the title in a championship encounter with Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo. Change took place in several minor title divisions.

In wrestling Gus Sonnenberg was defeated for championship laurels by Ed George, the Class University of Michigan athlete. Sonnenberg, who had won the title from Stronger Lewis, had held it 23 months.

Notre Dame again demonstrated its supremacy in football and in the outstanding football classics of the East Harvard beat Yale and Army defeated the Navy. Notre Dame finished its second undefeated season. Rocker's Rough Riders of 1930 stand forth as one of the greatest football teams of all time.

Conde Mack's Athletics won the World's Series in baseball from the St. Louis Cardinals, who made a gallant race from behind in the National League.

The Boston Bruins set a hockey record which may never be equaled, winning 28 out of 34 league games. Despite the Rossman lost the Stanley Cup to Les Connell in the playoffs. The Bruins started the season with the outstanding hockey aggregation of the year and one of the greatest combinations in hockey history.

Three of America's most brilliant sport stars saw their light dimmed. The mighty Babe Ruth, long Henry Horn King, was forced to play second fiddle to Earl Wilson of the Cubs. The great Tilden's star was dimmed by young Johnny Doeg, who in tennis and Willie Hoppe lost his grip on the billiard crown. The three old kings are passing their peak.

Four men's records were equaled or beaten on the track and field. The East completely overhauled the West in the record stretching. The new outdoor record holders are: Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California, 100 yds. in 15.5 seconds; George Simpson, Ohio State University, 200 yds. in 31.5 seconds; Bill Edwards, New York University, 800 yards, 1:52.1; Ralph Hill, University of Oregon, one mile, 4:12.5; Herman Bird, Los Angeles, A. C., five miles, 26:45.1; 10 miles, 54:45.1; 15 miles, 82:45.1; 20 miles, 110:45.1; 25 miles, 138:45.1; 30 miles, 166:45.1; 35 miles, 194:45.1; 40 miles, 222:45.1; 45 miles, 250:45.1; 50 miles, 278:45.1; In Love With Girl He Can't Understand

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
The only girl I ever cared for is the only girl I could never understand. She does almost anything for me, yet she does not seem to care. I love her, but she does not seem to love me. I have tried to tell her how I feel, but she does not seem to understand. I am very lonely and I want to know what she thinks of me. I have tried to tell her how I feel, but she does not seem to understand. I am very lonely and I want to know what she thinks of me.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX:
You could have told me that she loves this man before she told me that she loves him. I have taken her to places she could never have gone to. I have taken her to places she could never have gone to. The Mystery in Rheumatism

Coming of Rain Often Foretold

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

A POPULAR notion, long held by everybody, is that suffering from rheumatism is a good prophetic sign. Recent experiments by scientists have shown that this is not true. The American Medical Association has conducted a study of a year, 38 patients suffering from rheumatism. The study was undertaken to determine whether there was any relationship existing between rheumatic pains and the changes in the weather.

It is reported that if more than 50 per cent of the time the experiments showed a relationship between stormy weather and rheumatism, the time of the patients concerned to suffer more pain as the barometric pressure fell. During a study of the barometric pressure, wind, and the weather.

A FEW FASHIONABLE ENSEMBLES
New York, Dec. 27. Folks are getting a lot of practical, wearable gifts these days. And that certainly is a good idea.

Sometimes these gifts fit perfectly with some particular costume. Sometimes they need something to go with them to make them fit. Or something to make them into a complete ensemble.

If you're lucky enough to have had money given you Christmas, you may want to spend it on a gift for yourself. One of these bright, sparkling ornaments or a pair of earrings. And maybe a pair of earrings. One of these bright, sparkling ornaments or a pair of earrings.

Slippers and Bags
That's why if you've had an evening bag of brocade given you, you may want to spend it on a gift for yourself. One of these bright, sparkling ornaments or a pair of earrings.

Sparkling Clips
If one of your gifts has been a plain, unadorned handbag, a sparkling clip will make it twice as smart. Or perhaps you've been given a clip. It's fashionable to wear them in pairs, so another clip to match the first would be a fine fashion investment!

Butler, Norris, Lucas

Teapot Dome and Secret Slush Fund

The sinister campaign conducted by the Republican Old Guard against Senator Norris of Nebraska brings into this regard the ethics of Senator Butler of Massachusetts when he was chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Butler, selected by Coolidge, was offered a secret contribution of $50,000 in Liberty Bonds by Will Hays. The temptation to Butler to accept it was great. His party had a deficit. Hays was a man of good repute and the campaign for the re-election of Coolidge was coming along with its need of money for the extensive national canvass.

But Butler, as he later told this newspaper, said to himself, "We don't do business in Massachusetts that way," and he resisted the temptation and refused the secret donation. It was later revealed that the bonds had come from Harry Sinclair of Teapot Dome.

And now we see the spectacle of Lucas, selected by Hoover, not only amassing a secret fund for a sniping campaign against Norris, a Republican satisfactory to his Republican constituents in Nebraska, but employing the money to send out evil, unrespectable propaganda calculated to arouse religious antagonism against Norris because of his support of Smith. Whether it violated the law, it violated all pretensions of decency in American elections.

These same politicians pass the false theory that the American people get as good government as they are entitled to. The wonder is that the American people have not sunk to the level of these politicians.

High on Safety Honor List

Bay State Automobilists Slandered

The automobilist of Massachusetts is a very much slandered person. He drives with such an utter and reckless disregard of the rules of safety that he has made a slaughterhouse out of the highways of this commonwealth.

At least, we are led to that presumption by the complex statistics and summaries set before us with monstrous regularity.

Now comes the American Petroleum Institute and says that Rhode Island enjoys the best, Oregon the next and Massachusetts the third best mortality rate among the states in which it uses made its computations of deaths and accidents.

The drab statistics previously handed us seem to have been based on population, or number of cars or upon some other predicate which was by no means an accurate test.

The institute's test, which gives to Massachusetts a high place of safety honor, was based upon the automobile mileage of each of the States.

If that is not the best test possible and if it is not accurate, our own public officials can be safely relied upon to issue simply a justification of their repeated vilifications of the Massachusetts drivers.

BUT—let us all drive carefully and make this record an even better one. Human life is too precious to be destroyed by their carelessness and disregard.

No More Numbers

But You Can Still Lose Money

Setting on numbers, one of the nation's leading indoor sports, will be abolished if the Boston and New York Clearing House carry out their present plan of discontinuing the daily publication of figures after January 1.

The Clearing House has not been moved by philanthropic notions in the decision. They have been pestered past endurance by devotees of the number game, some of whom have tried to manipulate the figures, while others have even thought that the Clearing House ran the lottery as part of their legitimate business.

Ending the racket, however, will temporarily save the more credulous portion of the public a good many million dollars. And nobody need be alarmed or saddened. There are plenty of other ways left to gamble, from trap shooting to horse racing, and plenty of people who will take your money as quickly and gamely as the operators of this interesting pastime.

Keep Long Where He Is

Park Commissioner Knows His Job Thoroughly

Intangible political rumor, usually a pest born of scheming minds that have nothing more useful to command their energies, suggests that William P. Long may be transferred out of his position as Park Commissioner of Boston.

We hope the rumor is utterly without foundation. The public parks system of Boston is very much of a credit to this city. And "Billy" Long has been with that system, from top to bottom, for the past thirty-five years.

No man knows the parks and playgrounds better, no man has had more of a hand in their upbuilding and we doubt if any could be found who has a better knowledge and disposition toward their future development. No doubt Mayor Curley feels the same of his friend and colleague, faithful "Billy" Long.

Listen, World! - Murder

By ELSIE ROBINSON
Who's to Blame?

THREE BOYS killed their fathers in Milwaukee, they killed their mothers in New York, they killed their mothers in New York, they killed their mothers in New York.

Queer how we glorify such shameful weakness, just because it happens to occur in a woman. We'd spit on it, if it occurred in a man. So she sticks—with us applauding her. And the misery thickens into loathing and hate, until there isn't a corner of life free from it. Quarrels, night and day. Sisters and brothers, curses and blows—Mother, crouching with terror at the sound of a humming foot—Mother sprawled sodden with sobs. And the children creeping close, terrified, bewildered, plying, trying to comfort her with their weak hands.

Filling their little hearts loyally with hate, to comfort her! And, horribly, that hate does comfort her. Not being able to hold the man's love, she batters on theirs. Not being able to command the man's sympathy, she arouses theirs, by her outcries. Not being strong enough to revenge herself on the man, SHE WORKS HER REVENGE THROUGH THEM AND FINDS HER SATISFACTION IN THEIR HATE OF HIM.

Thomas Burke once wrote a hideous story. It was about a man who hated and who longed to kill the object of his hate. So nightly he chanted to his little daughter over and over his hate and his desire. His desire was for murder. Driving that desire in and in on her spirit. And at last she did kill—MURDER HAD BEEN FIXED UPON HER.

Mother do that to their children with the lash of their tears. They do not train them to murder but they train them to do that which breeds murder—they train them to HATE. And then, some day, a man is dead. WHOSE FAULT IS IT?

It is the fault of the mother who, in the name of love, breeds hate in her children. It is the fault of the mother who, in the name of love, breeds hate in her children. It is the fault of the mother who, in the name of love, breeds hate in her children.

THE CONTENTS OF WHICH I SQUEEZE INTO THE GLASS.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE
Slipper Gives Him Black Eye

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—It sounds silly and no one will believe me, but this is the way it happened. I had been to the Palace the night before and watched the juggler kick off his shoes and catch them. I tried it with a house slipper and the heel whanged me in the eye.

It happened before breakfast and at first there was only a blanch of pink, so I waited around for it to disappear. But it suddenly became the most painful green of wall paper, and finally, after a while, it turned into a royal deep purple, tinted around the edges with a sickly yellow. It was a beast!

I imagine trying to tell questioners you got a twister from hitting yourself with a slipper heel. I couldn't believe that one myself. And I've fallen for whoppers. Usually when I go to my dining room around noontime there is no one there.

But today—reading from left to right—my wife, my mother-in-law, two cousins from Ohio and a scrawny fellow who was something to do with piano instalment collections. There was nothing to do but face the music, so I popped in all merry and bright.

They were chattering away—all save the piano optimist who was holding his derby on his knee and waiting hopefully—but the minute they saw me they stopped and registered astonishment.

I tried to explain laughingly, ha, ha, I must have run into something. "You must have. Probably a door knob," cracked the second cousin who has no sense and has been fired out of five colleges in two years. All the time I could feel that eye ballooning.

There is something about a closing optic that takes on the latter part of a football game. A mousey eye and a bull fiddle are two things which I have never seen in the same degree of dignity. And you are a fool if you offer a single explanation sooner.

It being necessary to go to town on a few business errands, I tried to drop my hat brim over my eye farther than ever. But that's no good. Everywhere I was received with the same skepticism to say nothing of the Western Union men.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE R. BROWN

SPARKING OF reading people's minds of the Republican party, some body did a better job of it in the last elections out in Indiana and Ohio than Bob Lucas so far has accomplished in Nebraska.

WE TRUST that Senator McKellar will not hear about President Hoover using the old wood out of the form of a big stick.

We Know What We Are Now

But What Shall We Be in Future?

MAN CRAWLING ON ALL FOURS

The distinguished French scientist, Professor Rene Thevenin, continues in the American Weekly his studies and speculation on man's development and his possible future.

Two pictures in this column show what Professor Thevenin thinks may happen to us.

Above you see man as he may be, when the sun's diminishing heat sends us all to live inside of the earth, depending on the central heat of our planet.

"During the intermediate period, when the sun will still send us a little warmth and light, but insufficient to maintain normal life in its present form, it will be necessary to capture this heat and light by means of apparatuses like those shown here, which represent the revolving roofs of subterranean houses able to turn toward the sun's rays and store up rays received to transform them into electricity."

We know that our earth has a solid crust, only about forty miles thick. The whole earth is eight thousand miles through.

We live on the thin crust. And that rests upon an interior, hot beyond imagination.

Some day Mr. Rockefeller, or somebody else, will bore a hole through the forty-mile crust, tap that heat, as a source of perpetual power. Then we shall need no more waterfalls or gasoline or coal.

Eventually the sun's heat will fade away. The earth's cold surface will be uninhabitable. And men will be driven to the earth's interior, perhaps going down thirty-nine miles through the forty-mile solid crust, living on a thin floor one mile thick heated from the inside of the earth.

"It is probable that man will never quite arrive at the stage which is shown here. If, however, the development of civilization causes him to return to the average state and he is after that obliged to seek the last inspiring moments in a final effort to reach it, it would be necessary that his body should be modified in some manner like this imaginative sketch in order to adapt himself to the new condition of life."

You would hardly recognize yourself in this far-off descendant, who would grow on his eyebrows and lips long feelers to guide him in the dark, and perhaps develop a strange power of the eyes.

Professor Thevenin's most interesting speculations on our future are contained in tomorrow's AMERICAN WEEKLY, distributed with each copy of the BOSTON GLOBE AND ADVERTISER.

You will read with interest what other scientists think of the future, and a few of which have been called to your attention already in this editorial column.

You know, for instance, that we inherit our five fingers, according to scientists, from the five-toed salamander that lived in the carboniferous era, millions of years ago. If we had had six fingers instead of five, we should have the better duodecimal system instead of the decimal system.

And we should be able to play on more complicated musical instruments.

Also our eyes and teeth are very important. Few animals have eyes that are not better than ours.

But, finally, our BRAINS are all right. With them we invent adding machines, manufacture spectacles, false teeth and make up for nature's defects.

Don't fail to study these interesting scientific facts in the AMERICAN WEEKLY, distributed with the BOSTON SUN-DAY ADVERTISER tomorrow and every Sunday.
